

Local Exchange Carriers have a natural monopoly due to their ownership of wiring to homes and businesses, and in order for competition to function, must be compelled to open this resource to access by competitors.